Jobs, growth and council tax freeze prioritised

CREATING jobs, fighting crime and increasing economic growth were top of the list when the council set its key spending priorities for the next financial year.

The council agreed the funding for a number of key initiatives when it set its budget for the next financial year at a meeting last Wednesday (Feb 26).

Its programme of spending covers initiatives designed to tackle poverty and improve economic growth reflecting residents' concerns about unemployment, crime and regeneration.

The council outlined plans for continued funding of the borough's innovative employment programme, which is providing work for people worst hit by the changes to the welfare system.

The coming year will also see further development of new skills centres giving residents more opportunities into work and training in key industries with good employment prospects.

Money will also be spent on key anti-crime schemes, including a newly-formed police team set up to combat domestic violence, in addition to the highly-successful Violent and Organised Crime Unit (VOCU) which was set up in 2008.

Funding has been earmarked for the continued development of four key growth areas across the borough which are set to stimulate the wider economy of the borough.

Noisy dogs are a nuisance

IN regards to raising awareness of responsible dog ownership, when people take ownership of a dog but are unable or unwilling to give it as much attention and exercise as it needs, it can end up either stuck outside or confined for very long periods of time without the company, stimulation and change of scenery that it needs. This results in boredom, distress, health problems and sometimes destructive behaviour. For people living nearby, the sometimes constant noise of barking is also distressing.

When there is this 'casual' neglect of an animal, there seems to be a gap in any support or services to try to help improve the quality of life for the dog and neighbours if the owners are unwilling to address the problem.

This kind of scenario is not covered by the RSPCA, Council Dog Wardens and the Noise Nuisance Team can only partly address difficulties.

It would help by having a designated animal ownership advice group with powers to do more and monitor noise nuisance.

I realise that such an idea is difficult given the financial restraints on the council, but feel it is a project well worth consideration.

Name and address withheld by agreement

● A spokesman for the royal borough said: "Thank you for your letter. You rightly point out the royal borough's responsibilities regarding the measures available to us in dealing with dog related problems. As mentioned in GT on February 11, the stray dog collection service operates in order to pick up dogs and endeavours to return the animal to its owner whenever possible. You can call this service on 020 8921 8130 or, outside office hours, 020 8921 4661. We also deal with noise nuisance associated with barking dogs, although of course, we must first be satisfied that the animal is causing a nuisance to be able to pursue with the owner. Further information about our noise service can be found on our website at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/noise. Our recent article also mentioned the royal borough's commitment in reducing incidents and accidents involving dogs, and in 2009 introduced Dog Control Orders in an attempt to curb this problem. The royal borough also holds regular events to encourage responsible dog ownership, with a number coming up in March."

Star Letter

I WOULD just like to praise the wonderful service of the Handyperson. Available to older and disabled people, I recently called upon their services to have some rails installed.

They have a team of four - I was visited by Rob - who was really nice and understanding of my difficulties. He installed my rails, checking that they were OK, then cleaned up the smallest amount of mess. The service is excellent, the staff who take your call are so friendly and helpful. I just wanted to say a Big thank you, I'm already taking my rails for granted. Gay Richardson, Charlton
● A royal borough spokesman said: "Thank you for the kind words. It's always good to know that the service is appreciated. The Handyperson Service is available to residents over 60 or with a disability. Call 0208 921 2614 during office hours or email handyperson@royalgreenwich.gov.uk. Charges are made for some parts of the service."

Colombian guest gives children real life lesson in Fairtrade

SCHOOLCHILDREN heard at first hand how buying fairly-traded goods makes a massive difference to people's lives.

It happened last Wednesday, when they met a Colombian banana grower who was special guest at the borough's launch of Fairtrade Fortnight.

Talking through an interpreter, Spanish-speaking Alexis Martinez told them: "You can impact on the lives of people on the other side of the world when you buy Fairtrade bananas."

"Some workers have been able to buy pieces of land so they can build houses for their families. We are also building a school on land we have bought."

"It has all been made possible by you asking your families to buy fairly-traded products when they go to the supermarket."

Children from Charlton Manor and Millennium primary schools went along to the launch event at Woolwich Town Hall, and Senor Martinez answered their questions about how much banana growers earned and what their working hours were like.

Other Fairtrade products were on display from Sainsbury's, Asda, Morrisons and Tesco which stock them.

Items included coffee, chocolate, pineapples, tea and wine. These will now be passed on to the Greenwich Foodbank.

Mr Martinez was welcomed by the

GETTING THE MESSAGE: Pupils from Charlton Manor (above) and Millennium (left) had the chance to meet Alexis Martinez (back) at the Fairtrade event, with the deputy mayor Cllr Mick Hayes and deputy council leader Cllr Peter Brooks

Deputy Mayor of Royal Greenwich, Cllr Mick Hayes, and deputy council leader Cllr Peter Brooks.

Cllr Brooks said: "The slogan of this year's theme - 'Make Bananas Fair' - makes a real difference."

"Buying a Fairtrade banana over a normal banana can ensure that we make a difference to the lives of millions of people in the developing world."

Also present was Tim Sullivan, Greenwich Director of the South East London Chamber of Commerce.

He said: "We are openly supporting Fairtrade, and we want to bring its benefits to the international community."

Royal Greenwich was awarded Fairtrade borough status in 2006 for its commitment to Fairtrade.

Since then there have been Fairtrade fashion shows, coffee mornings and markets. A growing number of local businesses are now stocking Fairtrade goods.

Council sets budget priorities for next year

Services for children and vulnerable adults and those which support people in their own homes will also see a boost in investment.

A focus on improving tourism and the local economy will see funding to create further jobs in that sector while plans to redevelop local facilities such as Sutcliffe Park and the Borough Halls will progress.

Councillors say prudent budgeting in the face of £70m in government cuts has helped to maintain services and keep council tax at the same level for a 7th year.

Royal borough council leader Chris Roberts, said: "We have set our budgets and we are spending money on the services and initiatives that residents tell us they want prioritised. This is why we continue to fund weekly bin collections and why we prioritise key anti-crime initiatives, which has helped see crime rates in Greenwich fall much faster than the London average."

"We fully recognise that all of our residents, regardless of their situation or background, are finding a bigger strain on household budgets. This is why we're committed to doing everything in our power to enhance the local economy and to keep council tax bills as low as possible."

He added: "While the economic downturn has hit us all hard, I am proud of what we're achieving in Greenwich. We continue to invest in new school buildings to meet the needs of a growing population, such as the new Royal Greenwich University Technical College."

"We continue to invest and expand leisure facilities, libraries and children's centres where many other areas have seen theirs close. We have ambitious housing targets to help London meet the growing demand and to support the regeneration of our borough."

"We remain fully committed to protecting our frontline services, increasing growth, and making sure that all local people benefit from the ongoing regeneration of our borough."

Council observes minute's silence for Lee

ROYAL Greenwich councillors held a minute's silence in memory of Lee Rigby at the start of a full council meeting last Wednesday.

The tribute came after two men were sentenced earlier that day for his killing.

The soldier's death near Woolwich Barracks last year made headlines around the world.

Royal borough council leader Chris Roberts said: "No sentence can possibly assuage the grief of the family of Drummer Lee Rigby.

"They remain in our thoughts and prayers.

"We can only hope that the outpouring of sympathy from the public, following the loss of one of our soldiers, tenders some comfort and pride to them.

"We shall always be thankful for his service to his country." Michael Adebowale, 22, from Greenwich, and Michael Adebolajo, 29, from Romford, drove at the 25-year-old soldier with a car before murdering him in front of horrified onlookers on May 22 last year.

At the Old Bailey last Wednesday, Mr Justice Sweeney gave Adebolajo a whole-life sentence with no chance of parole.

Adebowale was given life with a minimum term of 45

The men had been told they could face whole-life jail terms after a key appeal court ruling last month declared that such sentences can be used in the UK.

A book of condolence placed in Woolwich Town Hall after Fusilier Rigby's killing was signed by thousands of local people, of all ages, faiths and backgrounds and presented to the Army.

Homes swap scheme helps 240 households

by Dick Townsend-Smith

A SCHEME to help housing association and council tenants exchange homes if they want something bigger – or smaller – has become a major success.

A total of 240 households have now been helped into new homes, supported by council housing staff.

Two events, called Mutual Exchange, were held to give residents options on alternative housing.

Some needed a smaller home, perhaps because children had grown up and moved out.

Others needed something larger, because their families were growing and they needed more room.

Exchanges can provide the quickest way of finding a new home, and the moving arrangements can sometimes be agreed within weeks.

The scheme is open to council and housing association tenants.

All landlords must agree before an exchange can go ahead.

At the most recent mutual exchange event at Woolwich Town Hall, 126 households were registered for the house exchange scheme on one day.

Within 24 hours their mutual exchange accounts were activated, allowing them to start their search.

Cllr Steve Offord, the royal borough's cabinet member for housing, said: "Our Mutual Exchange scheme is designed to help residents move into a more suitable home as soon as possible.

"It's a real option for those in search of alternative housing and as successful deals can be made within weeks.

"It's often much faster than going on the housing register.

"The events we have run so far have been really successful, with 240 households finding better suited accommodation already.

"This represents an increase of almost 30 per cent on the previous two years of exchanges completed.

"We will continue to work with residents to find solutions to their housing needs."

To apply for a mutual exchange in the borough, tenants need to do is complete a registration form.

● To do this, contact the Housing Allocations team at housing-allocations@royalgreenwich.gov.uk or on 020 8921 2941.

More information on the Mutual Exchange Scheme is at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homeexchange.

Anyone wanting to find a mutual exchange outside the borough should search the House Exchange website www.houseexchange.org.uk

Clean-up volunteers get Town Hall 'thank you'

PEOPLE who give up their spare time to keep the borough looking spick and span were given a big civic 'thank you' with an evening reception at Woolwich Town Hall.

The Environment Champions event was hosted by the Mayor, Cllr Angela Cornforth, and Cllr Maureen O'Mara, the council's cabinet member for community safety and the environment.

Cllr O'Mara said: "Without the efforts of these volunteers the council's resources would struggle to keep our borough looking beautiful. I really encourage them to keep up their good work. Their tireless efforts mean so much to us."

The 70 volunteers who attended were also thanked by the Mayor and Emma Harrington from the Clean-Up UK charity, which works with London boroughs to set up community groups who can work together on organised litter picks.

The reception has been held

BRUSH STROKES: environment champions in action annually to acknowledge the work of residents' associations, Friends of Parks groups, environmental volunteers and individuals.

They do litter-picking, remove graffiti and deal with fly-tipping and campaign work to help make the borough look tidy.

It gives them the chance to meet each other, share their stories and to receive a personal thank you from ward councillors.

Guns training

PEOPLE living around Woolwich Common may wonder what is happening next Thursday (March 13) when they hear loud sounds of gunfire.

But there is no need to panic. It will just be troops from the King's Troop Royal Horse Artillery on a training exercise. They are due to be firing about 10 rounds of blank ammunition on their training area on the common between 10am and noon.

The troop, based at Woolwich Barracks, will place sentries to ensure members of the public using the common do not stray into the immediate area of the guns.

Students plug skills gap

by Dick Townsend-Smith

ENGINEERING students at the borough's new University Technical College are learning to build the railways of the future – and helping to plug the growing national shortage of people with the right technical skills.

In its latest survey, the UK Commission for Employment and Skills says that although job vacancies are returning to pre-recession levels, many employers are still finding it hard to recruit people with the right skills.

University technical colleges (UTCs) are new schools developed to fill the skills gap by training young engineers to have the talent and skills industry demands.

At Royal Greenwich UTC, students are working alongside experts from Transport for London and Network Rail.

The technical academy is for those aged 14 to 19 and specialises in engineering and construction that need modern, technical, industry-standard equipment.

These are taught alongside business skills and the use of ICT. With the University of Greenwich and employer sponsors Wates and Transport for London, the practical and academic studies are combined.

Mike Sharp, the UTC's principal, said: "The UK tradition of world-leading design, engineering and construction is under threat."

"The Royal Greenwich UTC is nurturing the engineers and construction professionals of tomorrow to plug the skills gap and ensure that the products, skylines and systems of tomorrow's world continue to flow from the UK."

Admissions for September are now being accepted from Year 9 and Year 11 students. The Royal Greenwich UTC's next open day is Saturday (March 8) from 10am to noon. Prospective students can tour the campus, see department demonstrations and hear presentations.

The UTC open days are not just for students planning post-16 options. They are also for Year 8 students planning their GCSE courses. Students can apply to transfer to the UTC so they can begin their Year 9 at the college.

Digging in for hospice

Expansion project work begins

by Dick Townsend-Smith

THE first turf has been turned to mark the beginning of work to expand the Greenwich & Bexley Community Hospice at Abbey Wood.

The spadework was carried by hospice patron Baroness Howells of St David's.

She was joined by hospice chief executive Kate Heaps, estates manager Michael Power, and site manager Stewart Wilson.

The first dig marks the start of a programme including refurbishing the kitchen and courtyard garden, improving the main building's access, a purpose-built rehabilitation gym and the development of a community hub and care centre.

The new extension, set to open early next year, will enable the hospice to provide more education and training, open up its facilities to community groups and develop new services.

Baroness Howells, who was appointed patron last year, said: "I am delighted to be a part of such a worthwhile and vital resource for our communities here in Bexley and Greenwich."

The hospice is a registered charity that provides free specialist end-of-life care to about 2,500 adults with life-limiting illnesses each year who live locally.

Help dementia customers

by Dick Townsend-Smith

THE borough's 5,000 businesses are being encouraged to become 'dementia-friendly' by making their organisations more welcoming to people with dementia.

A guide is being sent to firms this month (March) giving tips on

● Helping staff to understand dementia better

● Improving signage in buildings

● Making customer information as dementia-friendly as possible

● Making time to ask customers with dementia for their views on improving links with the community.

The booklet advises businesses how to build a network of 'dementia friends' among their staff. These are people who are trained to understand dementia better and how to support and reassure people with the illness when they are out and about.

Cllr John Fahy, the council's cabinet member for health, adults and older people, said: "Dementia touches the lives of so many people, and it's important that businesses play their part in helping Royal Greenwich to become a dementia-friendly borough."

"The booklet is based on sound advice from organisations such as Alzheimer's UK, who have a deep understanding of the kinds of things that can make life easier for people with dementia."

Steve Maynard, of the South East London Chamber of Commerce, said: "We fully support the royal borough's programme to create dementia-friendly businesses."

"Any help in assisting sufferers of this slowly debilitating disease is clearly appropriate and necessary. All businesses should be encouraged to participate in using this toolkit."

The council has already signed up to the dementia pledge for employers, which obliges it to demonstrate its commitment to improve dementia services, benchmark its services against best practice, improve services for people with dementia, and share achievements.

The booklet, entitled 'Making Royal Greenwich a dementia-friendly borough: A toolkit for business', is part of the council's response to the Prime Minister's challenge on dementia, launched in March 2012 to tackle one of the most important issues resulting from an aging population.

● The booklet is available, along with other useful links, online at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/dementia

student art

Family members went along to admire the 18 students' AS Level course work.

School principal Madeleine Griffin said:

"I am so pleased to see so many people came to the exhibition. It is a great way to showcase the excellent and creative work of our students."

Chawntell said: "The theme of my art A level course is 'Celebration'. Over the course of the project I have been able to create many paintings and work in new media like plaster, clay, wire and even experimenting with photography techniques.

"I chose to focus on Japanese festivals and my final outcome is a combination of techniques and media I have learnt about, from studying new artists, as well as my personal style."

The exhibition was the first to be staged since Eltham Hill opened its Post 16 campus in September. Another is planned for the summer for Years 11 and 12.

Switch it off to save some energy

The royal borough is encouraging people to make an extra effort to turn off all unnecessary appliances to mark "Switch if Off Week" which runs until Sunday.

The aim is to get people thinking and talking about the energy that they use and waste, at work, school or at home.

The Carbon Trust estimates eight per cent of annual electricity bills are wasted.

Suggestions to reduce bills include not leaving computers and TVs on standby, unplugging chargers that are not in use, and switching off unnecessary lights.

METRO marks 30 years of LGBT support

GREENWICH-based charity METRO is celebrating its 30-year anniversary with an event at the Woolwich Centre on April 24.

The celebration, titled METRO and Equalities: 30 years in Greenwich, will include a series of guest speakers and will acknowledge the charity's firm roots in the borough and its work promoting the health and wellbeing of all people experiencing issues related to sexuality, identity or gender.

Speakers are set to include James Wharton, author of Out in the Army: My Life as a Gay Soldier, Helen Belcher from Trans Media Watch, and Steve Whiteman, director of public health for the royal borough.

Originally operating under the name The Greenwich Lesbian and Gay Centre and providing telephone advice and support groups, the organisation's current name developed in 1994 when it broadened its remit to become a charity working in partnership with statutory and voluntary organisations serving lesbians, gay men, bisexual and transgendered (LGBT) people and those questioning their sexuality.

METRO currently provides a range of sexual health, HIV, youth and mental health and wellbeing services in Greenwich and helps approximately 14,500 people every year.

Dr Greg Ussher, METRO acting CEO said: "We are delighted to be celebrating our 30th birthday in our home of Greenwich and 30 years of providing direct services and promoting equality, diversity, health and wellbeing. Over the years we have worked hard to respond to the needs of the communities we serve and to respond to changing times."

Avoid online licence application fees

Sponsored links make charges

RESIDENTS are being warned to avoid paying unnecessary charges for driving licences.

Several incidents in the past few months have been referred to royal borough trading standards officers from the Citizens Advice Bureau.

Now they are urging residents to stick to websites ending in .gov.uk when seeking licence information or making a licence application.

It follows several incidents of people being unnecessarily charged when applying for licences because they click on sponsored links or adverts.

In the cases reported applicants have been charged for services such as checking documents or changing information.

Several incidents of people being charged to apply for a licence have also been reported.

Extra costs are as much as £50, while some websites appear to charge as little as £1, prompting identity theft fears.

Clr Maureen O'Mara, cabinet member for community safety and environment, said: "The problem seems to be with new drivers being caught out and paying for a service they don't actually need."

"Our advice would be to stick to websites which end in .gov.uk and which have links to the government service you want, and if you have any concerns to ask a friend or relative to help you."

● Alternatively, residents are urged to contact the Citizens Advice Consumer Helpline on 08454 04 05 06.

● Royal borough trading standards officers are urging people to be 'cyber streetwise' when shopping, banking or socialising online. Residents can visit www.cyberstreetwise.com for guidance.

Nuisance calls phone scam

ROYAL Greenwich trading standards experts are warning residents of the latest scam where people are tricked into buying equipment to stop them getting nuisance calls. The scammers claim to be calling from the Telephone Preference Service (TPS) explaining that there have been a lot of nuisance calls in the area and that they can stop all nuisance calls for a one off payment.

After payment the caller claims they will send a box that plugs into the telephone socket or attaches to the telephone that will stop nuisance calls.

Now trading standards officers are reminding people that the TPS is a free service that allows you to opt out of receiving unsolicited call and that they do not sell any equipment that stops nuisance calls. They say the TPS never contact subscribers to ask for personal details or payment and advise residents to take details of the company then hang up. ● If you think you have been a victim of a scam you can contact the Citizens Advice Consumer Helpline on 08454 04 05 06. You can register your telephone number for free with TPS at www.tpsonline.org.uk/tps/ or call 0845 070 0707.

ROAD TRAFFIC REGULATION ACT 1984 AND
HIGHWAYS ACT 1980

The Greenwich (Waiting and Loading Restriction) (Amendment No. 4)
Order 2014

1. NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Council of the Royal Borough of Greenwich (hereinafter referred to as "the Council") proposes to make the above-mentioned Order under section 6 and 124 of and Part III of Schedule 9 to the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984, as amended.
2. The general effect of the Order would be to:
(a) provide 'at any time' waiting restriction on both sides of Stanley Close for approximately 15 metres from its remodelled junction with Avery Hill Road; and
(b) make certain other changes to bring the Order in line with the on-street layout.
3. FURTHER NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Council proposes, under section 90A of the Highways Act 1980, to construct the type of road humps known as "speed cushions" as single cushions in Avery Hill Road: (i) northbound carriageway, 3.7 metres north of the northern kerb-line of the slipway connecting with Halfway Street; and (ii) southbound carriageway outside No. 244 Avery Hill Road and Halfway Street, northbound carriageway outside No. 244 Halfway Street. Each speed cushion would be an elevated section of carriageway with a top edge between 25 and 100 millimetres higher at its highest point than the surrounding carriageway and measuring approximately 3 metres in length and 1.7 metres in width, including the gradients.
4. FURTHER NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Council intends, under section 23 of the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984, to install a toucan crossing in Avery Hill Road, opposite Arbridge Path. The centre line of the proposed toucan crossing would be at a point approximately 20 metres south-east of the common boundary of Nos. 238 and 240 Avery Hill Road and would be 4.00 metres wide between the road studs.
5. A copy of the proposed Order and other documents, including a map, giving more detailed particulars of the Order, speed cushions and pedestrian crossing are available for inspection during normal office hours until the end of six weeks from the date on which the Order is made or, as the case may be, the Council decides not to make the Order, at the Directorate of Regeneration, Enterprise & Skills, Strategic Transportation, Royal Borough of Greenwich, The Woolwich Centre, 35 Wellington Street, 6HQ.
6. Further information may be obtained by telephoning Strategic Transportation on 020 8921 2284.
7. Any person who wishes to object to or make other representations about the proposed Order or road humps should send a statement in writing, specifying the grounds on which any objection is made, to the Royal Borough of Greenwich, PO Box 485, Kemp House, 152-160 City Road, London, EC1V 2NR (quoting reference PCU/THO/CC/1000001640), to arrive by 25th March 2014.
8. Persons objecting to the proposed Order should be aware that in view of the Local Government (Access to Information) Act 1985, this Council would be legally obliged to make any comments received in response to this notice, open to public inspection.

Dick Townsend-Smith learns more about a new campaign designed to help children get lost in a good book...

A MAJOR campaign has been launched to encourage all schoolchildren in the borough to read more.

The council has tagged 2014 as 'The Year of Reading' in Royal Greenwich, and is leading a range of new initiatives to encourage junior citizens to get stuck in a good book.

Staff are volunteering to run book groups in both primary and secondary schools, and encourage greater use of school libraries.

The campaign comes on the release of the latest Key Stage 2 results for reading, which show there is scope for improvement for pupils leaving primary school. Greenwich's reading levels are still above the national average for 10 and 11-year-olds but the council decided more could be done to help children enjoy books and read more confidently.

Figures showed that pupils who failed to secure the expected level often missed out because they were not able to make connections between the text and the authors' sub-plots.

The campaign aims to help children and young people become "immersed" in a wide range of books to broaden their experience, and help them to become well-rounded citizens of the world of books, the media and the Arts.

The council recently hosted a special conference called 'Reading for Pleasure Changes Lives' involving children's author Michael Rosen and teaching staff from Thomas Tallis, Blackheath Bluecoat, Cherry Orchard, Morden Mount, Horn Park and Deansfield. Together with Windrush - schools said to be models of best practice in encouraging children to enjoy reading.

Cllr Jackie Smith, the council's cabinet member for children's services, said: "Our campaign is not just about encouraging young people to read more, which is vitally important in itself. It's also about helping them unlock the doors to wonderful new worlds where their imaginations can be given full rein."

BOOK PALS: Nine-year-olds Victoria Ogbuogu and Reece Seers with Jan Beames and Hayley Mourne from Cherry Orchard

PUPILS at Cherry Orchard Primary have their whole reading curriculum based around a different core text for each year. Every class at the school in Rectory Field Crescent, Charlton, has a teaching assistant to help with reading. Each class has a reading area decorated to bring to life the books the children are reading, such as a Tudor parlour or a Victorian house. Year 3 has one that looks like a Tube train, supporting books on travel, with maps. There are also after-school and lunchtime reading clubs. The school also has a successful blog where children can recommend books to each other that they have enjoyed. It also runs book sales, and uses books when giving out prizes.

School leaders say reading is a "massive" part of school every year group being read a story by their teachers for minutes at the end of each lesson. Eleven-year-old Kevin Ba "I like reading because it helps me learn new words. I write my own stories at home, and books helps me to structure my stories. What we do in school

Library reader groups

MANY local libraries run regular reading groups to help young people develop their love of the printed word. The 'Chatterbooks' reading groups are for children aged six to 12, and there are 'Manga Groups' for teens. ALL SMILES: children's author Michael Rosen calls in at South Rise primary school and soon gets everyone laughing

Author visit inspiration

THERE'S nothing like the enthusiasm of a successful children's author to inspire and encourage young people to read. Pupils at South Rise Primary in Brewery Road, Plumstead, were treated to a visit from Michael Rosen, author of books like 'We're going on a bear hunt' and 'Choosing crumble'.

The whole school enjoyed hearing an inspirational session from the author, who has written 140 books and was the British Children's Laureate for three years. He read extracts from his poems and books and answered questions on what first inspired him to become a writer.

Ross Silcock, the deputy headteacher, said: "All the children loved meeting Michael Rosen. We have more author visits planned to continue to inspire the children's reading and writing. "As a school we are committed to and passionate about reading for all children. We are always seeking new ways to inspire children to read and we were incredibly fortunate to be able to welcome Michael Rosen to our school."

Developing a passion for books

CHILDREN at Windrush Primary in Benthams Road, Thamesmead, are given every encouragement to 'read for pleasure'. Every class has a book corner, and pupils can take books home to read – fiction, non-fiction and magazines as well. They also role-play characters from books, dressed up in costume, to bring the stories to life. The children are encouraged to go to reading clubs after school, where younger ones read with the older ones.

Kieran Mendoza, 10, said: "You can use your imagination, and you can lose yourself in a book. If I like a book, I read some more from the same author." Harley Reynolds, 11, said: "I like comedy books and ones about lifestyle, such as about your body, or about animals."

Windrush's literacy co-ordinator, Lauren Tatton, said: "Reading for pleasure here involves the whole staff. Our teachers put a lot of effort into it and discuss books with the children. It helps them develop the same passion for books that their teachers have."

One of the advantages is that it helps boost the confidence for the older ones. They really look forward to it. It gives the school a family feel, and builds links across the year groups."

'Contest could kick start my music career'

VOTE FOR ME: singer songwriter Jamie

A SINGER songwriter is looking for votes for a competition which could launch his career in earnest.

Jamie France, 30, has lived in the royal borough all his life, is a music teacher and has done many cover versions of other people's songs, which have featured on YouTube.

One he did of Paloma Faith's new single Can't Rely On You on YouTube led to the artist tweeting him and pointing him towards an online contest called The Samsung Launching People Project.

There is a chance to be mentored by Faith - something Jamie, who writes in folk, rock and pop style with influences from the 1960s, would dearly love as he has been recording his own album.

One cover of a Bob Dylan track received 17,000 YouTube hits, while Faith tweeted her enjoyment of his version of her track, which included using a harmonica.

Having previously worked for Plumstead Manor School as a music teacher, he continues to work as an teacher of guitar, drums, voice and recording technology.

"I've set up a studio at home and I've spend six months recording my tracks," he told GT. "I'm ready to launch. The competition could be the start."

The artist with the most votes takes £2,000 worth of Samsung equipment, but the judges choose one person with the most potential.

Jamie added: "I have dedicated hours and years of my life writing music. I am most comfortable when I am behind my guitar writing a song. As a writer I listen to a wide range of music from various genres and styles and try to absorb it all like a sponge."

"The Samsung Launching People project is great because it gives creative people a platform to launch their ideas and grow as an artist, potentially taking their career to the next level."

"There are a lot of raw, talented people out there who need to be heard and developed. That's why a project like this is great."

Votes must be cast by March 9.

DOZENS of children are making beautiful music as part of the royal borough's first cross-school band.

The royal borough's music hub helped set up the East:West band after a visit from the world famous Bollywood Brass Band, which is a partner in the project along with the Lewisham music service.

The title refers to the fact that it spans Greenwich and Lewisham, geographically East and West of each other and the eastern association with Bollywood.

Now dedicated trumpeters, saxophonists, flautists, drummers, guitar and keyboard players meet each Thursday at Crown Wood College to rehearse.

They are working towards a gala concert in July.

They were recently visited by Chrissy Kinsella, a representative from the Mayor of London's Music Fund, which has provided the money to run the project, and Kay Charlton, music director of the Bollywood Brass Band.

Youngsters who are starting to learn music can join the group, which has so far drawn pupils from Sherington, Plumcroft, The Gordon, Crown Woods, Woolwich Polytechnic and St Paul's, from age 10 upwards.

Daisy Veacock, 10, has been learning the saxophone for more than two

SWEET MUSIC: Youngsters celebrate playing together in the East:West band

IAN LAMONT talks to youngsters enjoying a new orchestral venture in the borough years from her father, Phil, who arranges musical material for Jools Holland.

She said: "I've played in school orchestras, but being in the band pushes you and makes you more skilled."

Fellow 10-year-old Sherington pupil Alice Outen, also a saxophone player, added: "The band is really fun. It builds my confidence as well because we do performances which help a lot."

The group's gala concert is scheduled for July 3 at the Shooters Hill campus.

Peter Kotz, the royal borough's cabinet member for cultural and creative industries, said: "We have a great deal of music in our schools, but we've not had this type of orchestra or band before, with players drawn from different schools.

"It's wonderful that the royal borough's music hub has managed to put this together to give young people the chance to gain further experiences in music as well as broaden their horizons outside their normal school environment."

COLOUR DYNAMIC: Doke La Pass, by Australian photographer John Chapman

Around the world in a snap

THE Heritage Centre is currently hosting the Royal Photographic Society Overseas Chapters 2013 Exhibition.

It's made up of the finest pieces submitted by the Royal Photographic Society's 1,400 overseas members who are part of 19 Chapters, from across the world.

The first picture to catch my eye was entitled "Stradbroke Island" and at first glance seemed like an ordinary wooden wharf. However, upon closer inspection, it's nothing of the kind and I spent a long time pondering what it was a picture of.

"Interaction at Teatime" was next and what a wonderful capture of an everyday innocent moment it is.

A picture to make you laugh: "Is That Football" and every parent seeing this picture would just dread what was coming home to go into the washing machine from this muddy scene!

"Doke La Pass" is another picture which is not, at first glance, what it appears. The sheer breathtaking depth of perception and colour dynamic is a lot to take in.

My favourite came right at the end entitled "Shan't Listen to your Nonsense" and it did make me chuckle with admiration for an inspired interpretation of an infamous tea party.

The exhibition offers a whirlwind, round-the-world tour of some amazing and moving scenes and a taste of world class contemporary photography. Forget my descriptions and go see them for yourself!

Archbishop to help Demelza

THE Archbishop of Canterbury Justin Welby (pictured) has agreed to become a vice-president of the Demelza children's hospice in Eltham. He said: "The work of hospices is often misunderstood but places like Demelza are vital, helping to care for some of the most vulnerable in our society."

Great War project

THE launch event of the 'Family stories of the Great War' project will take place at the Greenwich Heritage Centre at the Royal Arsenal in Woolwich on Thursday, March 13. The event, from 6-9pm, aims to collate information on people's ancestors who lived through the First World War, from 1914-18.

Authors boost libraries

GESMAY Paynter was among authors who entertained audiences with their tales during the South East London Writers Festival, which attracted 480 extra visitors to borough libraries.

Born in the Seychelles, she has visited 50 countries and now written a book called 'Sharing Bananas: As a bunch we can do more.'

Her story is about how she has assimilated the cultures of the places and people she has visited.

A charity she helped set up has helped Philippines natives whose lives were destroyed by a volcano erupting.

They now sell their crafts, made from volcanic ash which has a clay-like property, at markets once a month, with money going back into their community.

In April, she will return to the Seychelles, where she has been invited to set up a school, and be followed by a film crew.

Explaining her motto to listeners at Woolwich Library, in national book week, she said: "When you put your intention out there, the universe is there to help you."

Several other speakers across libraries included Kristina Bedford, who has written Eltham Through Time and Woolwich

Tales to tell: Gesmay Paynter (standing) talks to borough residents in the Woolwich Centre library

Through Time, books which compare how the areas looked now and 100 years ago.

Books in the series - including on Royal Greenwich - have been ordered for borough libraries.

Cllr Peter Kotz, cabinet member for culture and creative industries, said: "Royal Greenwich libraries have had a very successful and enjoyable National Libraries Week."

"We hosted a variety of author and children's events, which included everything from puppet shows and presentations on local history to talks by new and exciting local authors."

"This resulted in more than 480 additional visitors being welcomed into our libraries."

IMPORTANT NOTICE FOR ROYAL BOROUGH TENANTS WHO ARE MOVING

DON'T GET A BILL AFTER YOU LEAVE

Under the conditions of your tenancy agreement, you have a responsibility to leave your property in an acceptable state of repair. We may visit you to check this. If we consider your property is in an unacceptable condition, you may be prevented from moving or be recharged for work.

To avoid getting an unwelcome bill, follow these rules:

- Repair any damage caused to the property by you, your family or visitors to your home.
- Make good any changes you have made to your property e.g. put back any doors that you have removed.
- Make sure your garden is not overgrown and you have cleared all garden waste.
- Clear all your items from the inside and the outside of the property. This includes any loft space, external cupboards or sheds.
- Return all the keys to the Royal Borough's offices no later than midday on Monday (or Tuesday if it is a Bank Holiday). You will be charged a further week's rent if you do not return your keys on time.

If you leave repairs that are your responsibility, or items that require disposal you will be charged the cost of this work.

Special Collection Service

The Royal Borough offers a Special Collection Service for tenants who are moving and want to dispose of something big and bulky, like a sofa or a fridge, and even unwanted clothes and other textiles.

Simply contact Waste Services on 020 8921 4661 and tell them where you live and what you would like taken away.

Items we will collect include:

Fridges, freezers, washing machines, beds, sofas, clothes and carpets (carpets must be cut up and tied into manageable bundles that one person can carry).

Items we DO NOT collect include:

Fitted kitchens, bathroom suites, boilers, sheds, fences and rubble.

For further information, please contact Waste Services on 020 8921 4661.

Please leave your home in a good condition!

Sabrina's joy

Reducing swimming helps earn national cross country glory

by Ian Lamont

SABRINA Sinha won the under-15 national cross country title - and then described how she had learnt lessons from last year.

Then, the 14-year-old was third in the race when competing at the bottom end of the two-year age-group category.

But the teenager said she found competing full pelt on the big cross country events plus swimming was too much.

Some major swimming galas clashed on the same weekends.

This year she has scaled back on the swimming, something she hopes will give her a chance of achieving a cross country double, with the English Schools cross country championships taking place this weekend (March 8).

"Last year I finished third in the nationals, fifth in the inter-counties and 23rd in the English Schools," said Sabrina, from Blackheath.

"I had a lot to be happy with, but coming back on a Saturday night and doing swimming galas the next day was too much and my body couldn't cope. I've cut down on the swimming this year."

Sabrina, who is supported by Greenwich Starting Blocks, a charity set up to assist talented athletes, has also learnt to be more tactical.

"I like to go out to the front and take total control," she said. "But the first year I did the nationals it was only 3km, but now the distances are longer."

"I'm looking after myself for other races and I've tried different tactics."

In the 350-strong field of under-15 runners in Nottingham, Sabrina went straight to the front to be part of the leading pack, but let others take turns in leading.

She exchanged the lead several times with the runner who finished second, eight seconds behind.

The Cambridge Harriers runner was doubly determined to win, having taken the under-13 title two years ago.

"It gets harder as you get older," she said. "As you get older more people work harder and improve and you also realise the significance of it, which I didn't two years ago. You realise as you get older you are going to have to give up some things in order to achieve what you want."

"I've given up some school sports because I want my lunchtimes to spend with friends or to do homework."

That is because she is hard at work training and, having punched the air in delight at the finish line, she added: "It's nice when the hard work pays off."

Sabrina, whose older sister Natasha is also supported by Starting Blocks, had already won county and Southern championship cross country titles this season, after taking the 1500m English Schools athletics title on the track last summer.
